MNGT5095 | 6 Units of Credit

Overview

This course consists of three modules:

1. Reflective Practice;
2. Skills;
3. Teamwork.

The first module introduces students to the main theories, models, and tools of reflective practice including self-awareness, relating to others, emotional intelligence, culture and diversity and ethics. The second module consists of written and oral communication, presentation skills, creative and strategic thinking and case analysis. Students are given the opportunity to practise and reflect on their own creative thinking and communication skills under varying circumstances. The third module introduces students to teamwork. This module encourages students to explore self and group efficacy, teamwork skills and their capacity to handle the demands of the course and their personal life. In this way the course aims to encourage students to focus attention beyond graduation and strengthen students' commitment to the program.
