Integrated Studio: Culture and Identity

SDES9211  |  6 Units of Credit

Overview

This course will provide students with the opportunity to place integrated and interdisciplinary design in the context of questions of culture and identity. Working across 2D, 3D and 4D design processes and outcomes, students will develop and manage materials, techniques and personnel across a number of areas of design in order to explore the ways in which cultural, environmental and social contexts impact on design. This course provides opportunities for the development of an understanding of the interrelationship of culture, identity and design that will support studio specialisations.
