Indigenous Cultural Heritage and the Environment

ATSI3003

6 Units of Credit

This course explores Indigenous perspectives on the management of country, waterways, culture and heritage in Australia. By exploring intersections between cultural heritage management practices, the environment, Indigenous knowledges and the contemporary space, students will gain an insight into best practice models for cultural heritage management and associated practices of sustainability and maintenance of Australia's rich cultural heritage and the environment. A compulsory field trip for this course incurs an additional cost.
