Overview

This course will give students the communication strategies and techniques to both create and share design ideas and concepts with others. Students will be introduced to the different communication techniques that are used throughout the design process from conceptual design to project completion. Students will learn how communication conventions and strategies vary depending on what is being communicated, for what purpose and at what stage the project is at. This course will introduce students to visual, spatial and oral modes of communicating design ideas in the Built Environment.
